
Tapestries brings together trumpeter Adam Zinatelli, composer and percussionist Chris Sies, pianist Chloe Weston, and Kensington Sinfonia in contemporary works by Canadian composers Chris Sies, Evan Ware, Mark Limacher, and Jens Ibsen. Written for combinations of trumpet, piano, percussion, and string orchestra, the four works explore connections between memory, perception, musical history, and experimentation, drawing on influences that range from Baroque traditions to psychedelia and progressive metal. The works move between historical reference and contemporary experimentation, revealing contrasting approaches to texture, form, and expression within Canadian composition.
